Round House.

The round house of the Utah Central depot is nearing completion. The masonry work has been finished and the roof is now being put on. The house is of brick with iron door posts, fronts and eaves and is a picture of strength and durability. It will soon be completed; one portion of it is already being used.

Educational Association.

It was announced some time ago that the Salt Lake County Educational Association would commence operations during the week now commenced. The Council House has been secured for the meetings of the association for the season now commencing. The first meeting will be held on Friday evening, the 25th inst., at 7:30 o'clock. It is hoped that sufficient self-interest will be exhibited by teachers to turn out in force. Teachers, trustees, and the friends of education generally, are invited to participate.

All members of Zion's Musical Society are requested to meet in the New Assembly Hall, immediately after the close of the Tabernacle services on Sunday afternoon, for the purpose of deciding upon a date for the concert, and to arrange for rehearsal. A number of officers and leading members of the Society met at the Council House on last Thursday evening, and decided to introduce musical instruction in connection with the regular exercises, a plan for which will be submitted to the meeting. The business to be transacted will occupy but a few minutes, and it is hoped that every member of the Society will attend.

Reconstruction Impossible.

This may not be true as regards states—indeed we know it is not; but it is absolutely true as regards the delicate organs, the human lungs. When they are diseased and partially consumed, they cannot be restored to a healthy condition. But bear in mind that this misfortune can never happen if Hall's Honey of Horehound and Tar is administered as a remedy for the cough which always precedes Pulmonary Consumption. Sold by druggists everywhere at 50c and $1. Great saving by getting the large size.

CONFIDENCE CHAPS.

A Couple of them Captured and in Jail.

The article in Saturday morning's HERALD, relating the manner in which a gentleman had been beaten out of $1,400 by confidence men, has done some good. The gentleman who was the victim is Mr. Turner, from the north, who was taken in by Jones' bank, and the auctioneer, as will be seen elsewhere, was Mr. H. A. Reed. The amount for which checks were given was not $1,400, but $1,100. The individual represented himself as being the nephew of Mr. McCarty, president of a bank in the north, and not the son, Mr. Turner and Mr. McCarty are intimate friends and on the strength of this friendship and the assurance that the money would be repaid in half an hour the checks were issued.

In the other particulars, excepting perhaps one or two unimportant statements, the account was correct. It had been the intention to let the matter drop as the money had not been secured, but as soon as it was published a different course was determined upon. The job was given out at the house where Jack Dowd put up. The police on Saturday caught a sharp watch for Dowd and his partner, but could not find them. It was evident they were keeping ahead.

In the evening Officer Phillips learned where they were secreted and sent word that he wanted to see them. They came to him, when he told them what he wanted. They were accompanied by a man to the City Hall. Their persons being searched a $500 check was found on Dowd, the one issued by Turner, the other being for $600, which was in the possession of Mr. Reed. Dowd had also in his pocket a memorandum book, in which were written the names, rooms and residences of persons in the city, and it was supposed, are among those spotted as victims of the confidence game or whose premises are to be burglarized. Both Dowd and his partner, Jack Edwards, or "Winemack" Jack, had new garrotting straps on their persons, showing that they were prepared for business. When asked what was wanted of him, Dowd, with an oath, remarked that Turner had stopped payment on the notes.

The police believe the thieves now have an organized gang, and that Dowd is at the head of the band. Turner determined to prosecute Dowd and Edwards as vigorously as the law permits, and it is possible the preliminary examination will come off on Monday morning. In the meantime both are in jail.

It is understood that Dowd makes no attempt to deny the facts in the matter.

School Examination.

On Friday evening the Fourth District school of this city held a public examination for the term commencing August 18th and ending October 22nd. The exercises, which lasted nearly two hours, consisted of grammar review, reading, geography, arithmetic, and penmanship. The pupils were divided into four classes, First, Second, Third and Fourth. One feature, especially, was the singing by the whole school. The pieces were, "Never be Late to the Day School," "Dear Children, God is Near You," and "O God, Redeem Us." These pieces were appropriate and admirably rendered.

On tables were spread nearly fifty maps, drawn by the pupils of the geography class, written exercises in arithmetic, grammar and penmanship. Tacked on the walls were about forty specimens of writing, showing the advancement of the pupils, while the house was beautifully decorated with pictures and mottoes.

After the exercises the trustees made a few remarks, speaking highly of the management of the school and the progress of the pupils, and congratulated them on their exceptional well in their exercises and as trustees were well satisfied with the present teacher. The work of the pupils was admired by the audience, who stayed a half hour after dismissal to look at the maps, writing, etc.

The Weed Yard Matter.

Notwithstanding the fact that the city has gone to the expense of fixing up a portion of Washington Square in fine style for the reception and accommodation of persons with money, hay and coal and vegetables, and persons generally coming in to town to make purchases on Saturday, they do not seem to appreciate it. Every day in the week teams are tied for hours on the west side of General Wells' premises, and on Saturday they block it and the vast side of Temple Street, making the street impassable as it has ever been. They were paid no attention to the order. It would not be a bad idea to put up a few cords at these places and others warning teams against unbecomingly standing in the streets or keeping their teams standing the any length of time, and informing them that they will be compelled to move or they will have to suffer the consequences. A policeman was sent along these places three or four times a day, and ordering persons off the streets onto the square would soon teach our country friends that this would be cheaper than at Washington Square in the first place. If it is this is done the fixing of the square will prove a folly.

MOODY AND SANKEY.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 23, '80.
Editors Herald:

You have been to hear Messrs Moody and Sankey, as a matter of course, I went to hear them last night, not exactly so much as a matter of choice. I suppose they don't mind being talked about in the paper. If I thought they did, I would feel about them. The revival business, singing, praying, and preaching, manifestly agrees with them, what ever it may do for some other people. They, these two, are last night, Mr. Sankey appears to have his chin and a piece of the top of his head. Mr. Moody doesn't appear to have shaved his face for many days, but he may have used the scissors freely.

The proceedings of the evening, as I saw them, were, first, Mr. Sankey invited singers in the audience to go and sit upon the platform and fill it. He presided at the organ, in the front center of the stand, and led the singing. He and the other singers sang portions of various hymns. The congregation was invited to join. Then Mr. Sankey would sing a verse, and the platform singers and the congregation, some of the congregation, joining in the chorus. Mr. Sankey sang agreeably, and he knows how to accompany. But he does not want to do all the singing himself.

The singing had the way of a sort of familiar concert, or an overture to the main business of the evening, and lasted thirty or forty minutes. Then Mr. Moody strongly invited the congregation to join in the chorus. The congregation did not join to any great extent. Perhaps the people did not know the tunes. He had the audience on its feet to get it to sing, but it was not successful. It was a congregation, for some reason or other, didn't "enthusiasm" alarmingly.

After prayer and more singing, Mr. Moody entered on his discourse, which was upon the characteristics and offices of Jesus Christ. Luke Paul, Mr. Moody was determined to know nothing but Jesus Christ, and him crucified. The sermon lasted the orthodox thirty or forty minutes, and was delivered extempore, in a rather rapid manner, with considerable appropriate gesture at times, and an occasional burst of uncontrolled emotion. It was a pretty good sermon of the kind, containing some excellent ideas, aptly illustrated sometimes by a telling anecdote. There were some sensible things in the sermon. The moderate and mild, and one of its most sensible features. The hour and a half sermon is not exactly the thing for everyday spiritual diet. One needs to be very spiritually hungry to enjoy so long a repeat.

A prayer meeting followed for which I did not stay.

In a theatre in Dublin, during a recent revival time, one actor asked another how he felt. He said he felt very good. "Well," said the other, "I feel very uncomfortable." The joke did not take very well with the theatre audience. Perhaps the majority felt too uncomfortable to stay.

ABOUT HARD CASES.

Of Whom We Have a Few Here.

This is the season of the year when hard cases begin to drop down upon us. Some time ago a boy of hard countenance looking individuals happened into town, and have found some money, as he says, in the street. He is inclined to remain for an indefinite period. Two very nice looking fellows accompany him, and are receiving attention every day, until now the corps is quite formidable. Persons who are much on the streets can readily detect the stolen character. They have such mild and child-like visages. It has pleased the chief of a certain gang to make this an camping ground for awhile, and he has brought with him some of his lieutenants. The advent of this gang a couple of ladies have lost purses, which were stolen from their pockets, one containing $35; a house, and $255 stolen. The stolen clothes and a trunk, a man in a suit was robbed of a pocketbook containing some thirty odd dollars, though this act is not attributed to the recent arrival, but to a person who was in the saloon at the time; a number of petty thefts have been committed in different quarters; on Wednesday night a residence in the Fifth Ward was entered, a trunk broken open, some clothes and $275 stolen. The stolen clothes and a trunk were left by one of the robbers as partial payment for a bullet wound which he received at the hands of young Marston. Still later a woman who was put up at the saloon at the time, a number of petty thefts have been committed in different quarters; on Wednesday night a residence in the Fifth Ward was entered, a trunk broken open, some clothes and $275 stolen.
